REDOUBLED EFFORTS TO STOP THE WORK OF THE GAMBLERS.

How Law Violators Escaped-Thwarting the Subsidized Counsel of the Louisiana Company—Test Case to Be Made Under Section 763.

The police authorities of the The police authorities of the city, encouraged by the stand taken by Tim Chiric against the Louisiana State Lottery, have redoubled their efforts to find some way of escape through the meshes of the net which the nets of Congress have formed around them. They have again and again tried to discover a law under which the agents of the great gambling institution might be prosecuted and a institution might be prosecuted and case made. Each time they have bee thwarted by the shrewd and high priced counsel employed by the company, who has studied with just as eager an eye and as active a sense as they have.

The police think that they have a last found a way out of the difficulty however, and in looking over the stat utes they have come upon section 763. which reads:

Any one of the justices may hold a special term with the same powers and jurisdiction possessed and exercised by the District Courts of the United States.

This statute held out some hope and it was pursued further. The discovery was made that seventeen years later it was revised so as to read:

Section 763 is amended by striking out said section and inserting in Heu thereof the following as section 763: Said courts shall have cognizance of all crimes and of-fenses committed within said District, and of all cases in law and equity between par-ties, both or either of which shall be resities, both or either of which shall be resident or found within said District, and also of all actions or suits of a civil nature at common law or in equity, in which the United States shall be plaintiffs or complainants; and of all seizures on land or water, and all penalties and forfeitures made, arising or accruing under the laws of the United States; and any one of the Justices may hold a Criminal Court for the trial of all crimes and offences arising within the District.

This law the police thinks again.

This law, the police think, covers the agents of the lottery company. In selling tickets of the New Orleans firm they are guilty of a misdemeanor in the sight of the law. Now the question is whether or not an "offense" and a "misdemeanor" are not synonymous. This question the courts will have to decide

But just here another obstacle was thrown in the way of the law being carried out. In 1871 the Police Court was organized and given exclusive jurisdiction over all crimes and offenses committed within the District within a contral way. certain limit. This limit is supposed to have included the offenses committed by the agents of the lottery in this city and when brought before that court they simply demanded a jury trial. This the Police Court, of course, can-not give them, and the cases are sent on to the grand jury, who never prefer an

As has been before stated in THE Caurre, they are awaiting the decision of the case of Edward Green, which has now been before the Court in Gen eral Term for several years, and, per-haps, will always remain pigeon-holed, for it has been clearly demonstrated that were a decision made it would prove conclusively the unconstitution ality of the Police Court. This the This the higher courts do not want, for it would stop short the administration of justice in the District and deluge the higher courts with a flood of petty trials. The acts organizing the Police Court came in direct conflict with other and earlier acts, and the statute quoted is one of them. Every American has the right of trial by jury, and no judge has the right or power to deny this demand. It is just here that the administration of justice, so far as lottery cases is concerned, comes to a stand Detective Block is the Washington authority on lottery and policy. He has studied it and the laws for its suppression attentively, and he has them all at his fingers' ends. What he doesn't know about it isn't worth knowing, and what he says about it may be taken as true without a grain of allowance.

There are just two ways out of the trouble," he said to THE CRITIC representative. "Either Congress must give to the Police Court a jury, or section 763 must be brought into requisition. We have tried the former method, and, in the closing days of President Cleve-land's Administration, a bill was passed by Congress, giving the Police Court a jury of six men for the trial of any cases where a jury trial might be demanded. This bill was sent to the President for his signature, but he never gave it. On the other hand, it was vetoed, and two or three days afterward Congress adjourned and President Harrison took his seat. I haven't heard of the bill since that "I think there is no reason why a case should not be made in section 763. In very plain words it gives the justices a right to sit in criminal trials. Why haven't they a right to sit in the lottery and policy trials as well as any other.

The Supreme Court of the United States has decided a case which I think puts the matter in rather a clear light though it also decides that the Police Court is unconstitutional. This wa in the case of the striking theatre or chestras of the city who were charged with conspiracy, and the case being carried to the Supreme Conrt it was decided in favor of the defendants on thos.

This decision was made just as I had been directed by A. A. Birney, who was at that time the Prosecuting Attor-ney of the District, to act. He directed me to arrest every lottery agent in the city, and after some difficulty I succeeded in getting warrants against over thirty of them. It was four days before the warrants, however, and by that time they had wind of it, and whe we went to make the arrests we found every place closed, and had to serve them whenever we were able to find the men.

"At last we got them all to the Police Court, but before we could do anything the decision was made by the Supreme Court, and for some reason the cases were abandoned. I think there is no reason why the cases should not be made on section 763."

The police propose to make an arrest under this section of the law and make a test case. If they succeed in making the case, the lucrative business of sell ing lottery tickets in the District will soon be a thing of the past.

The faculty, as well as the resident physicians, all examined the patient, and came to the conclusion that Steele died from an obstruction of the vena cava voice, which feeds the upper extremities from the heart. The man's neck, face and arms were terribly swollen, and at times his eyes seemed ready to pop from his head. His arms were twice their natural size, and he seemed to suffer much pain, Frequently he would full asleep while He seldem lay down. How the Report His Friends Would Buy the St. Paul .. Globe" Started. A dispatch was sent out from this city the other day to the effect that friends of ex-President Cleveland were going to buy the St. Paul Globe, the leading Demecratic paper of the Northwest, in order to boom his candidacy for 1892. Mr. Lewis Baker denies the report, saying that he had refused to sell last summer at a better than good price. He then tells how the report might have originated.

About a year ago I was in Washington and met Dan Lamont. We were discussing Western newspaper property. At that time there was a minority in terest in the Globe held by outside parties, though in such shape that I could sell it to any person. I men-tioned this to Mr. Lamont and said: 'If you know any bright editorial writer who desires to come West and take an interest in the Globe I can arrange it so that you can purchase this minority stock.' Some time later Mr. Lamont sent to me Mr. Lyman, who subsequently got control of the Helena Independent, and who was then Washington Correspondent of the New York Sun.
We discussed the matter several times, and finally I told him that perhaps a small newspaper, in which he could get a controlling interest, would suit him better.

"He assented and I referred him to the Helena Independent, saying I thought he could arrange a deal with Governor Hauser to secure that paper. It is possible that when some one was talking of Western newspapers, La-mont, who was in Washington a few mont, who was in Washington a few days ago, mentioned that an interest in the Globe could be purchased, and this started the rumor. That interest, however, is not new for sale, all the stock being under my control. I notice also in this dispatch it is said that the purchase of certain newspaper plants to boom Mr. Cleveland's candidacy early in the game is a part of the battle his friends have manned out. Now if his friends have mapped out. Now, if his friends are as shrewd as I believe they are they will not do anything of that sort. His candidacy will not be aided by any programme of that character. It is too early to boom any candidate. Booms started so long in advance of the Presidential year are liable to die a natural death. If Mr. Cleveland is to secure the nomination it must come by reason of a widespread feeling that he is the proper man to be put at the head of the Democratic ticket, and it will not is furnishing strong proof to those who hear the testimony that the possession of a big fortune is not a guarantee of a happy life. Old Maltby G. Lane, with all his gold, must have been as miserable a man as ever cut a coupon.

Mrs. Marietta Lane, widow of Malt-by's son Richard H., yesterday re-sumed her testimony for the contest-ants. Mrs. Lane, the second wife, to whom the big fortune was left, sat and scowled at the witness scowled at the witness.

The witness said that when her son was born old Maltby sent her what he called "luxuries." These were a pineapple cheese, two pounds of head cheese, six lemons and a bottle of milk. He sent with these delicacies a caustic note telling her to use them sparingly. She said that after she had been in duced by misrepresentation to transfer her house and home to Maltby G. Lane she found it necessary to ask help of him for her children, but he harshly told her she could go to work. The old man's character is well shown by the following letter put in as evidence:

In conclusion, the witness said that she was not invited to Lane's wedding to the Widow Graham. She did go to Lane's funeral, but was ordered out of the house by the second wife.

William B. Reed said that for twenty years he was in the same real estate office with Lane, at 100 Fourth avenue. Lane, he said, was sour and penurious in disposition. William P. Maynard, a photographer, said he called on old Lane just after his son died, and wish-

BUFFALO SENSATION,

Remarkable Case of Two Radfords Which is Puzzling the Lakeites.

Buffalo has a mystery. A man calling himself Isaac H. Radford of Toronto is in Buffalo, and is plunging in real estate like a veritable Count of Monte Cristo. A real estate man said to a local reporter:
"Radford is not planking down a great deal of hard eash. Most of his deals are trades. He seems to have any quantity of property in Georgia, Da-kota, North Carolina and even in New York, or near it. He says it is family property. He is trading this property off for Buffalo real estate, and about the only money that has changed hands so far has been in taking up mortgages. He has probably paid out $70,000 or $75,000 in Buffalo. He betrays an extraordinary knowledge of values in different parts of the country, seems to have the law of transfers in different States at his tongue's end, and is, in fact, as sharp as a whip. He is veritable plunger."

Wr. Radford and his wife live quietly and appear in rooms in a private house and appear to be thoroughly respectable people. Nevertheless, his appearance in the City by the Lake has aroused the Buffalonian mind, and it is recalled that a man of the same name—Isaac H. Radford and halling from the same city-To-ronto-made a great sensation in Buffalo about five years ago. He registered at the Tucker House and said he was just up from New York City. The report crept about that he had $40,000 about him.

His movements under the circum-tances attracted much attention, and when it was reported that he was arowned there was much excitement. He had left the hotel, saying he was going across the river to Victoria. It was known that he hired a boat, and he was noticed by several persons, who observed the color of his overcoat. Next day the boat was found in the river containing the overcoat, but no Rad-ford. Many thought he had been killed, a few that he had committed suicide. Finally his hiding place was discovered, and he was arrested and taken to Toronto on a charge of attempting to swindle a life insurance com-

No Remarkable Activity in Commerce but a Confident Feeling. White the prevailing impression in business circles is rather less confident than it was a week ago, say Mesars. R. Z. Dun & Co., of New York, in their weekly review of trade, there are several signs of improvement. Cooler weather has caused a little more activity in some lines of trade, wheat is a little stronger, and without clearly de-fined reason there is a firmer tone in the Eastern from markets, while the reduction in the lank of England rate from 6 to 5 per cent., with its large gain of $4,315,000 gold luring the past week, diminishes the chance of inconvenient demands from abroad. On cent., with its large gain of $4,315.000 gold during the past week, diminishes the chance of inconvenient demands from abroad. On the other hand, general trade is not increasing in volume or in profits, and while its soundness is indicated by the occurrence of fewer failures than many expected, as the result of phenomenally unseasonable weather, the complaint of slow collections is common and rather increasing. The clearings through banks at New York fell below those of the corresponding week last year 5.2 per cent.; at Boston, Philadelphia, and Chicago together the increase was baruly 1 per cent., and at all other cities only about 4 per cent., a considerable decline from the recent rate of gain.

Business at Boston is rather quiet, dull as to wool, with prices favoring buyers; more active in dry-goods, with cottons very firm, but moderate in woolens; hides are dull and domestic weaker, and the shoe factories are not all fully employed. At Philadelphia the dry-goods trade is not what it should be for the season, conservatism prevailing, though retail trade is better and a good spring trade expected. Wool sells slowly; coal is very dull; hardware dull; the liquor trade fair; tobacco quiet, with slow collections, and the gracery trade generally depressed, with collections very poor. At Chicago grain recepts exceed last year's, and receipts of beef products and lard are nearly or quite double, with a gain of 50 per cent, in cheese for the week, and some improvement in hides and wool, but no enange is seen in ciotaing, though the dry-goods trade compares fairly with last year's, and the shoe trade is only fair. Chereland notes fairly good trade, but the bad condition of country roals affects collections, though in some lines they grow better. Detroit observes fewer failures than were apprehended from the mild weather, but at Milwaukee extended time has been given on many large accounts, and cold weather has come too ate to clear the stocks in many country stores. Fair reports come from Omnha, St. Paul and Denver, an excess of exports over imports of about $10,000,000. In three weeks of February the exports from New York show scarcely show, owe. The three weeks of February the exports from New York show scarcely any increase, and the imports an increase of only 3 per cent., indicating thus far an excess of imports. Wheat exports are still above last year's, and the price has risen 2\(\frac{1}{2}\) cents with reports of injury to the growing crop. Corn exports largely exceed last year's, and the price is a quarter lower, with oats \(\frac{3}{2}\) cent lower. Cotton exports this week have been 15,000 bales larger than a year ago, but for the month thus far 30,000 bales smaller, but speculation has pushed the price still higher by a sixteenth. Fork products are steady and moving outward fairly, and oil, after decreasing a million in value of exports in January, has declined 1\(\frac{3}{2}\) cents for the week. Speculation in coffee is stronger at 20 cents, but sugar has not changed.

It is difficult to account for a better tone which clearly exists in the iron market here and at Philadelphia unless it be due to hope that Southern iron, which is now moved from Shefield at \(\frac{3}{2}\). So per ton to Pittsburg, and selling there somewhat largely, may hereafter affect Western rather than East.

In short, everything that pertains to the greatness and advancement of the Nation increases the Government business to be transacted at Washington; and while other cities have special local avenues of trade, commerce and general business, the whole country pays tribute to the progress and prosperity of its National Capital.

The rate of taxation in Washington is established by act of Congress and is lower than in any other city on the continent. It is fixed at only one dollar and and a half on each one hundred dollars of assessed value.

The Congress of the United States appropriates verify an amount equal to the sum paid in taxes by property-holders for local improvements and the administration of municipal affairs of the District.

In other words, the National Government pays one-half of the amount annually expended in conducting the local affairs of the Capital City and in promoting its future progress and development. No other community in the world has such resources behind it, or is backed by such an Indorser.

Washington has the best public school system in the world, and contains the most commodious and conveniently arranged public school buildings.

It also has a large number of the best private educational institutions in America.

As the seat of the Government of the United States its prosperity? and future greatness are assured by the growth and development of the nation's interests in the wonderfair progress and development of the resources of the Government powers and boards of the Government powers and boards of the Government now established here are being constantly increased by the rapid growth of the nation's interests in the wonderfair progress and development of the resources of the Republic.
